During the last years, Nadja Jarc M.D. was very actively involved in the organisation and execution of several European PD Summer Schools, sponsored by the WFN Association of Parkinsonism and Related Disorders, and during these meetings she was actively involved in the many discussions with the participants regarding the development of experimental studies in neurological movement disorders.

During these discussion she did show her great enthusiasm, interest and insight in the structure, function and various dysfunctions of the central nervous system, especially neurodegenerative diseases.

Thanks to her efforts, these Summer Schools were highly appreciated by both the European participants as well as the international faculty.

During these courses, she did show more than adequate intellectual and social capacities and also enough enthusiasm, initiative and tenacity to eventually offer her a residency in Neurology. I am happy to recommend her for such position in the University Medical Centre in Ljubljana, without any restriction
